Dr. John Jacobs and W. D. Heebner to Play Prominent Part in Semi-Centennial

BOTH HELPED TOWN GROW

Lansdale's two "daddies" will take part in the semi-centennial celebration of that thriving Montgomery County town, which begins tomorrow. One is William D. Heebner, a former Controller of Montgomery County, and a former member of the State Legislature. The other is Dr. John Jacobs, "the grand old man of Lansdale." And the citizens, who "all are shouting," as Dr. Jacobs expressed it, for the semi-centennial also are cheering for Dr. Jacobs for the part he has played in the history of the city.

White hair standing on end, one hand alternately pulling at his bushy eyelrows and his snowy goatee, Dr. Jacobs turns a tolerant if somewhat impatient eye upon all visitors and rather brusquely inquires what they want. It brusquely inquires what they want. It is the second glance at the tall, broadshouldered figure which shows the twin-kle in the keen eyes and kind lines which eighty-three years of thought-fulness have drawn on his face.

For fifty years he has lived in Lans-dale, from the time when there were only three houses on one side of the railroad, and only about 200 inhab-itants, until today, when the population numbers more than 5000.

"When I came home from the war in *65." said Dr. Jacobs, "I -practiced medicine for four years and wasted them. Yes, made a fizzle of the whole thing, and then I came here, and here I have been ever since.

"After I had finished college at Gettysburg I thought I knew it all." he declared, chuckling. "Yes, every bit of it. But I found out differently, and I have been learning ever since. That's what's the matter with the young people today. They are all right, but they think they know everything—they al-He gave another pull to an eyebrow as he reached over and transferred a "pinch" of tobacco from the box on the desk to his mouth. A few minutes of silence and then he continued: "I finally gave up practicing medicine and I have been in the banking business ever since. Still am," he ended shortly.

ever since. Still am," he ended shortly. "Have too many irons in the fire."
I'rebably the most startling thing Dr. Jacobs ever did was to refuse a salary of $19,383 due him for his four years and ten months' service as Controller of Montgomery County. Always a keen, shrewd financier, he saved the county hundreds of thousands of dollars every year he held the office, but when his term expired he refused to accept any remuneration.

when his term expired he recused to accept any remuneration.
"I told 'em when I took the office that I wouldn't take a penny for my work, and I won't," he said. "I'm, no millionaire, but I didn't need the money and didn't want it."

Dr. Jacobs served in the Council for more rearrangements. many years, acting as president. He started a bank in East Greenville, the Montgomery Trust Company, at Nor-ristown, and is still president of the National Bank of Doylestown. Some of his other irons bore the marks of railroads, and he was president of the Spring Garden Farmers' Market Com-

Still interested in the community. Still interested in the community, watching its progress with the same sincere interest, half concealed under his rather ironical attitude, he still is active in business. His hobby is Lansdale. And president of the Lansdale Borough Council, he may often be seen during the summer days with his shirt pleaves rolled up, riding with a driver on a borough dump cart.

PASTOR NOT TO CHANGE Rev. E. O. Keen Not to Take Oak

The Rev. Edward O. Keen, of York Pa., who had accepted a call to the vacant pulpit at the Oak Lane Reformed Church of this city, will remain in his old charge, according to word received from York today.

Mr. Keen is pastor of the Memorial Reformed Church at York. Several months ago he asked his York congregation to prepare to receive his resignation, so that he could assume charge of the Oak Lane church. He has withdrawn his resignation, it is reported. though the reason for his change of plan is not stated.

The Oak Lane church has been seeking a new pastor for some time. The news that Mr. Keen would not come to Philadelphia was received with surprise at the Reformed Church Househere.
